- United States Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit Judicial Law Clerk, The Honorable Judge Raymond Gruender, 2018-2020

Allie assists clients with litigation matters in both state and federal court.

She performs legal research, drafts pleadings and motions, assists with client communication, and analyzes legal arguments to develop a case strategy. Allie also has experience in preparing for arbitration hearings, including witness preparation.

Allie earned her J.D. from Washington University in St. Louis School of Law. While there, she completed an internship with the United States Attorney for the Southern District of Illinois and an externship with The Honorable Judge Rodney W. Sippel for the Eastern District of Missouri. She also worked as a Notes Editor for her law school's Law Review.

Before joining Thompson Coburn, Allie clerked on the United States Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit for two years. Her responsibilities included drafting opinions and researching complex legal issues. During her second year clerking, Allie coordinated workflow, trained and supervised her co-clerks, and edited the first draft of all opinions.
