Jennifer is a highly skilled labor and employment associate primarily focused on employment litigation.

She defends businesses of all sizes with regard to sexual discrimination, FMLA, sexual harassment, race, and religious discrimination claims.

Jennifer has appeared before many state and local agencies, including the Equal Opportunity Employment Commission, the Missouri Human Rights Commission and the Illinois Department of Human Rights. She also has a background in ERISA litigation, and spent years handling complex cases for businesses and individuals.

Jennifer is exceptional at getting to know her clients and their businesses, and enjoys working together to come up with creative and practical solutions to their employment-related issues.

Jennifer earned her law degree from the University of Illinois, and graduated magna cum laude and as a member of the prestigious Order of the Coif, an honor society for distinguished law school graduates. She was also a member of the National Moot Court Team, an annual inter-law school competition co-sponsored by the New York City Bar Association's National Moot Court Competition Committee ("Committee") and the American College of Trial Lawyers (ACTL).
