John draws on his more than 30 years of litigation experience to represent a wide variety of clients in federal and state trial and appellate courts.

A former Assistant Corporation Counsel for the City of New York, John has tried and brought to verdict or favorable settlement several large jury and bench cases, argued scores of appeals and mediated and counselled clients in high stakes matters in New York and throughout the country.

John's experience is broad based. He has litigated various substantive law disputes, including cases involving officer and director breach of fiduciary duties, corporate waste and mismanagement allegations, and partnership disputes. He has represented clients facing issues related to perishable agricultural commodity statutory trust violations, corporate and intellectual property law, and accountant's malpractice.

John has particular experience leading real estate and bankruptcy litigations for major financial institutions, large retail organizations, commercial landlords and tenants. He has represented Chapter 11 trustees and creditors' committees, and secured and unsecured creditors in bankruptcy proceedings.

John has also defended various public officers and employees in civil rights cases and a prominent retailer in a variety of matters, including landlord/tenant, breach of contract and class action litigation alleging violation of state consumer protection and business laws.

John has given numerous lectures on a variety of topics to clients and various professional organizations, including before the New York State Society of Certified Public Accountants discussing expert testimony and reports.
