Justin focuses on protecting all forms of his clients' intellectual property through litigation in federal and state courts across the country. These matters include patent, copyright, trademark, counterfeit, trade secret, and breach of contract cases. His detail-oriented and aggressive approach to litigation, while at the same time never losing sight of his clients' best interests, positions each case for the best possible result.

Justin also provides strategic counseling to companies of all sizes to help proactively protect some of their most valuable, but often overlooked, assets—their intellectual property rights.
