THOMPSON COBURN CONTINUES TO SUPPORT FOR SLIP LAW INSTITUTE MISSION

For 26 years, Thompson Coburn has participated in the St. Louis Internship Program (SLIP). SLIP—a year-round internship program designed to help youth from financially disadvantaged backgrounds—trains St. Louis high-schoolers in skills they will need in the marketplace and places them in paid eight-week internships with local businesses. Since its founding in 1992, nearly 4,000 students have completed the program. Ninety-eight percent of SLIP participants have successfully acquired skills, graduated high school, and pursued goals. To be eligible, students must maintain at least a 2.0 grade point average (GPA) and qualify for free or reduced lunch.

During summer 2017's Law Institute component of the program, students visited the courtroom of Judge Jimmie Edwards to learn about his career path and processes in his courtroom. Thompson Coburn associate Elise Puma developed a case scenario for the students to kick off their mock trial training and development.

MISSOURI SUPREME COURT HONORS TC'S 'DEDICATION TO JUSTICE,' RACIAL AND ETHNIC FAIRNESS

BILL
BAY

The seven judges of Missouri's highest court have singled out Thompson Coburn and partner Bill Bay for the Firm's generous support of the Supreme Court of Missouri's Commission on Racial and Ethnic Fairness, a statewide commission dedicated to ensuring "fairness, impartiality, equal access and full participation for racial and ethnic minorities in the judicial process and in the practice of law."

BOOKER
SHAW

For the past year, Bill has served as a co-chair of the Commission with Missouri Appellate Judge Lisa White Hardwick and Michael Middleton, the interim president of Lincoln University in Jefferson City. Partner Booker Shaw is also a member of the Commission and served as the co-chair of the Commission's Municipal Justice Subcommittee. He also served as co-chair of the court's separate Municipal Division Work Group.

In an October 27 letter to Chairman Tom Minogue signed by all seven Supreme Court judges, the high court recognized the Firm's "spirit of civic commitment" and thanked Thompson Coburn for its contributions of time and resources, which "have advanced the work of the Commission profoundly."

The judges emphasized Bill's extensive work as co-chair, including traveling around the state to attend Commission meetings and community listening sessions, and his leadership on the development of the Commission's 40-page final report, now nearing completion.

"Bill has been the moving force of much of the Commission's work," the letter said. "Additionally, Thompson Coburn's dedication of time and facilities as well as personal support to the National Consortium on Racial and Ethnic Fairness convention held in St. Louis on May 15-17, 2017, was truly generous. This bestowment allowed the Court and the State of Missouri to demonstrate our community's commitment to civil rights and equal access to justice for all to the national organization."

CHICAGO

RHONDA THOMAS HONORED BY LAW SCHOOL, CHICAGO BUSINESS COMMUNITY

Chicago partner Rhonda Thomas received two major honors in 2017, one from her law school alma mater and one from Chicago’s leading business publication. In April 2017, Rhonda received the “Citation of Merit Award” from the University of Missouri School of Law as part of Mizzou’s 2017 Law Day celebration.

The Citation of Merit Award is the highest award the Law School bestows on its graduates and is given in recognition of an attorney’s outstanding contributions to the legal profession and the community. Past recipients of the honor include Thompson Coburn namesake Richmond Coburn, Missouri Governors Mel Carnahan and Jay Nixon (Rhonda’s former law student) and U.S. Senator Claire McCaskill.

Rhonda graduated from Mizzou Law school in 1973, having completed her third year of legal studies at Yale. Her legal career began as the first woman to clerk for the Missouri Supreme Court. Rhonda’s law practice was launched in the City of Columbia’s municipal attorney’s office, where she was named as City Counselor in 1976. While working for the city, Rhonda taught at Mizzou law school part-time and was appointed as a full-time law professor in 1979. Rhonda left teaching to enter private practice in 1982 and joined Thompson Coburn in 1985.

Continued support for Mizzou has been an ongoing passion for Rhonda. She currently serves on Mizzou’s Cabinet for its $1.3 billion capital campaign, is a member of Mizzou Women Give, the Griffiths Leadership Society for Women, the Jefferson Club and the MU Alumni Association, and was past president of the Mizzou Law School Foundation.

In July 2017, Rhonda was selected for Crain’s Chicago Business’s inaugural list of the “Most Influential Women Lawyers in Chicago.”

Here’s the text of Rhonda’s profile in the section:

“Throughout her long career as a public finance attorney, Rhonda Thomas has built a national reputation for leading complex, large-scale projects for public- and private-sector clients. These projects frequently include innovative, first-of-their-kind financing elements that contribute significantly to project funding and ensure clients have a solid financial footing for decades to come.

Recently, Thomas led work on the following transactions: as disclosure counsel for the City of Chicago’s $1.9 billion O’Hare Airport refunding bonds, which constituted the largest bond issue in the city’s history; as disclosure counsel on the general airport revenue bonds, which will fund the proposed O’Hare International Terminal expansion project and restructure the airport’s debt; as underwriters counsel and disclosure counsel for Chicago Public Schools in more than $2 billion in general obligation bonds issued by Chicago Public Schools; and assisting with complex procurement issues related to CTA’s purchase of $1.3 billion of railcars to be delivered in 2019-20.”

LAURA JORDAN NAMED A 2017 BTI CLIENT SERVICE ALL-STAR

LAURA JORDAN

BTI Consulting Group selected labor and employment partner Laura Jordan as a “2017 Client Service All-Star” based on unprompted client feedback it received during its annual survey of corporate counsel at Fortune 1,000 and other large organizations.

“The only possible avenue for becoming a BTI Client Service All-Star is for corporate counsel to identify an attorney who stands out for delivering superior client service,” noted BTI in its 2017 report. “These attorneys are proactive in building client relationships. They take, and make, the time to understand their clients in-depth — their business, their objectives, and their goals.” BTI recognized 319 All-Stars from across the country in 2017; they represent just 56 firms nationwide.

Laura was recognized as an All-Star in “Labor & Employment.” She provides high-level strategic human resources counseling to executives and HR managers during every phase of employment, from hiring and leaves of absence to terminations and any resulting litigation. Laura serves as primary outside employment counsel to employers across the country, from major financial institutions and large manufacturing operations to small nonprofit organizations. She is a member of Thompson Coburn’s Management Committee and the chair of the firm’s Women’s Initiative.

KRISSA LUBBEN WINS FIRST 'TC-SQUARED' AWARD FOR TOTAL COMMITMENT

KRISSA LUBBEN

The first Thompson Coburn Total Commitment Award was presented during the firm dinner to Krissa Lubben for her innovative work on many fronts in developing the firm's relationship with Rabo AgriFinance.

After collaborating with Thompson Coburn on a new approach, $10 billion agricultural lender

Rabo AgriFinance (RAF) realized significant time and cost savings as well as a reduction in documentation errors by outsourcing its loan documentation and legal review process to Thompson Coburn. Managed under a monthly flat fee and supported by two Thompson Coburn attorneys working onsite at RAF's St. Louis headquarters, RAF realized more than 10% savings in legal costs, saw a 167% reduction in turn around time for initial loan legal reviews, and achieved greater predictability over a once variable business unit, including the ability to develop predictability metrics that allow the business to better plan for high-demand periods of lending activity.

FELICIA WILLIAMS HONORED BY WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY BLACK LAW STUDENTS ASSOCIATION

St. Louis associate Felicia Williams received an "Outstanding Achievement in Practice" award at the Annual Scholarship Banquet of the Washington University School of Law's Black Law Students Association.

Just five organizations or individuals are recognized at the banquet, which honors "esteemed and young alumni" and recognizes the efforts of legal employers to improve diversity.

Felicia, who was part of the Thompson Coburn trial team that obtained the largest defense verdict in Missouri last year, said it was a surprise and an honor to be recognized by her peers and fellow Washington University School of Law alumni. Several Thompson Coburn associates – current and future – were on hand to celebrate Felicia's honor.

AMANDA HETTINGER, SARAH WADE NAMED TO 2017 UP & COMING LIST

AMANDA HETTINGER

Missouri Lawyers Weekly named Thompson Coburn partner Amanda Hettinger and associate Sarah Wade as Up & Coming lawyers for 2017.

The publication recognizes attorneys 40 or under or in the first 10 years of their legal careers who have done outstanding work in the profession and in their communities.

SARAH WADE

Amanda helps clients effectively respond to complex litigation, including class actions related to consumer fraud allegations and a lawsuit that upheld the City of St. Louis's right under the Missouri Constitution to repeal an existing retirement system and establish a new plan under local control.

Amanda serves as a cabinet member for the United Way Women's Leadership Society and, in her role as a Trustee for the Federal Practice Memorial Trust, helped plan the quadrennial Federal Practice Seminar in conjunction with the judges of the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Missouri.

Sarah is a former bank examiner with the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis and draws on her background in finance and bank regulation to not only represent lenders and borrowers in complex financing transactions, but also provide in-depth regulatory counsel. Among her financing transactions, Sarah has participated in the negotiation and closing of a $300 million financing transaction for a bank client who acted as joint lead arranger and administrative agent.

Sarah volunteers with the Ronald McDonald House Charities of St. Louis, and previously coordinated Thompson Coburn's efforts in the Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis's annual Motion for Kids event.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

D.C. BAR MAGAZINE PROFILES ASIAN PACIFIC AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

When the Washington Lawyer, the D.C. Bar magazine, decided to write a feature on voluntary bars, they began with a look at the Asian Pacific American Bar Association of D.C. and its dragon boat team.

Up front in the photo as one of the stroke pair is Thompson Coburn associate Jayna Maria Rust. In 2016, Thompson Coburn sponsored the team, known as the "Bakunawas," and Jayna captained this year's team, which competed in May against 46 other boats from around the D.C. area and the East Coast.

The Washington Lawyer noted that APABA-D.C. is one of the largest and most active associations for Asian Pacific American attorneys in the D.C. area, with more than 400 members.
