I began my legal practice by working for two years as a law clerk for a Chief U.S. District Judge, which gives me a unique perspective when advising clients on litigation strategy.

overview

Jeremy Hall's practice serves clients in complex class action, mass tort, and product liability matters. He performs legal research, supports discovery, and assists with case strategy and motion practice at all states of litigation. He has represented manufacturers, retailers, public utilities, pharmaceutical companies, and nuclear fuel processing facilities in state and federal courts.

He also works with subject matter experts to help develop expert opinions and prepares experts and company witnesses for deposition. His firm grasp of civil procedure and keen awareness of court rules and judges' requirements are informed by his experience working for a federal district judge.

While in law school, Jeremy was an honors intern at the Pentagon in the Office of General Counsel (Legal Counsel) for the U.S. Department of Defense. He also completed internships with the U.S. Department of Justice and U.S. Army JAG Corps.

Before joining the firm, Jeremy was a law clerk for the Honorable Stephen R. Clark, Chief District Judge for the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Missouri. During his two-year clerkship, Jeremy gained significant experience researching complex legal issues, drafting opinions and orders, and assisting with trials and hearings.

experience

- Representing manufacturer in product liability class action.
- Representing nuclear fuel cycle facility in personal injury, class action, and property damage matters.
- Representing generic drug manufacturer in wrongful death product liability matter.
- Representing manufacturer and global retailer in wrongful death product liability matter.
- Representing public utility in product liability class action involving PFAS.

in my free time

I enjoy hiking and biking with my family and practicing soccer with my son. I also enjoy playing drop-in ice hockey and visiting local parks and restaurants. On my way to and from the office, I enjoy listening to podcasts and audiobooks.
