I'm passionate about helping clients navigate the complexities of business litigation with a focus on achieving results that align with their goals.

overview

Kevin Foley is dedicated to guiding clients through a broad spectrum of business litigation challenges. He has experience in all stages of litigation including preparing for trial, drafting motions for summary judgment, drafting motions in limine, responding to subpoenas and discovery requests, and drafting discovery requests.

Kevin brings keen analytical skills and legal acumen to his practice, drawing on his former background as a lab technician at the Donald Danforth Plant Science Center to inform his methodical approach to problem-solving.

experience

- In multiple Borrower Defense Repayment Claims, helped to draft BDR responses for various schools.
- Participated in a litigation team defending a uranium processing facility, assisting with motion drafting, trial preparation, and research.
- Assisted in defense of a major biotechnology/agricultural company in numerous matters, conducting research, drafting discovery requests and motions for summary judgment, reviewing expert reports, and other tasks in various phases of litigation.
