Banks and financial services organizations call me for prompt evaluation and strategic approaches to resolving statutory claims and business disputes.

overview

Matt Guletz is a litigator who resolves business, banking, and financial services matters.

Deeply focused on representing banks and financial services organizations, Matt has an impressive history of achieving favorable outcomes in cases related to federal statutory claims, including FDCPA, FCRA, TCPA, RESPA, TILA, and related statutes. He also successfully navigates state law claims, whether through summary judgment, at trial, or on appeal.

Beyond his banking and financial services practice, Matt handles class actions and other complex business litigation matters. His diverse experience includes tackling products liability cases, deceptive trade practices or consumer fraud claims, malpractice suits, and insurance defense.
